

A high-level block diagram of our proposed system is shown above. The camera's most interface will be an industry standard personal computer bus. The camera will be constructed from modular sensor units mounted on a common mother

